Citibank and Saxo Bank Among Companies to Unveil New Advancements at The Traders Expo New York

SARASOTA, February 7, 2008 -- InterShow, the world's leading producer of investment trade shows and cruises, announced that several companies participating in The Traders Expo New York, February 16-19, 2008, at the Marriott Marquis in Times Square will be releasing new trading products and services during the show. Over 6,000 active traders will gather to further their trading education by meeting with experts and leading service providers, many of whom find it the perfect opportunity to release their latest developments.

Two major financial institutions, CitiBank and Saxo Bank, joined efforts in November 2007 to form CitiFX Pro, a new company with a margin FX trading platform. Just as The Traders Expo aims to give traders of all levels the same access to trading education and tools that professional floor traders have, CitiFX Pro will make institutional-level electronic trading available to sophisticated individual traders and small institutions who wish to trade spot FX on margin. As CitiFX Pro's Sasha Serebrinsky further explains, "Backed by the market leader in FX for over 100 years, CitiFX Pro will offer streaming prices with flexible execution, competitive spreads, and sophisticated functionality in a state-of-the-art trading platform." The company will make their premiere at The Expo beginning Saturday, February 16, at which time their Web site www.citifxpro.com will go live.

New York-based Cyber Trading University educates individuals in the art of day trading and will be releasing a new continuing education program called the "CyberGroup." The program aims to provide an online mentoring community for traders who have taken courses through the University and seek to further their education by learning from their fellow day traders. It will give users access to an exclusive daily, live trading CyberGroup chat room and live webinar morning meetings. Also included in the membership will be personal coaching and assistance from instructors offering stock picks and advice. Those interested can visit their Web site to learn more and enroll in a 2-week free trial.

Software providers NinjaTrader and Market Analyst will also be premiering their latest versions at The Traders Expo. NinjaTrader, a developer of trading software serving discretionary and automated traders of futures, equities and forex, will release their newest program, NinjaTrader v6.5. This edition boasts many advanced charting and comprehensive trading system development features; including customizable indicators, as well as offering advanced charting, market analytics, automated strategy development and trade simulation free to the user. Market Analyst will introduce their latest software, Market Analyst 5, which has already premiered in their native Australia and is available in 3 versions. Market Analyst's Jonathan Garrett explains, "We have always prided ourselves with pushing beyond the boundaries of current technical analysis thinking," which is why the company joined efforts with many of the world's leading technical analysis educators. This latest version stands out among others of its kind most notably for using an advanced graphics engine to offer users 3-D advanced charting analysis, allowing them to view the markets from a dramatically new angle.

CitiFX Pro, Cyber Trading University, NinjaTrader and Market Analyst are just four out of the 100+ trading software and service companies exhibiting at The Traders Expo New York. Along with the ability to test-drive these and other products in the Exhibit Hall, The Expo offers active traders the opportunity to hear from over 50 leading trading experts in more than 125 workshops, panel presentations, and live trading challenges, as well as a selection of optional (paid) intensive sessions.
